Invitation

The Pan African Travel Medicine Federation invites you to participate in the Pan African Travel Medicine Conference to be held in Dar es Salaam in October 2026. The conference is held in collaboration with the 9th Regional Conference of the International Society of Travel Medicine.

14-17 October 2026

Protea Hotel by Marriott Courtyard

Dar es Salaam, Tanzania

About Us

The Pan African Travel Medicine Federation represents African travel medicine societies, groups, and individuals practicing travel medicine on the continent. Members include physicians, nurses, pharmacists and allied professionals. The Federation, a registered non-profit organisation in South Africa, provides a unified voice for African health practitioners to:

- Develop and ensure a high standard of care in their countries
- Create a network of providers across the continent
- Foster education and research opportunities
- Represent African travel medicine internationally

Since 2020, the Federation has provided member benefits and delivered educational events such as webinars, masterclass series, and an online travel medicine course to develop capacity and expand standardised travel health practice across Africa.

What is travel medicine?

As a frontline pillar of public health, travel medicine plays a critical role in preventing the international spread of infectious diseases through targeted interventions and empowering travellers and migrants with informed decision-making to stay healthy during their journey. By enhancing disease surveillance and enabling early detection of emerging threats, it significantly strengthens global health security in an interconnected world.

Why become a sponsor?

The conference offers a platform for your brand to connect with practitioners who are actively seeking the latest products, technologies, and services that advance travel medicine standards of care. By aligning with an event that highlights emerging travel medicine trends in Africa, your brand gains visibility, credibility, and influence in this space.

Sponsoring this conference positions your brand at the forefront of discussions on traveller and migrant health risks, prevention strategies, and clinical best practices, while providing direct access to healthcare professionals, researchers, and key industry stakeholders. Attendees come ready to discover new solutions that help them deliver optimal care to travellers and migrants, making this the ideal opportunity to showcase your expertise and strengthen your market presence with this audience.

Delegates are looking to connect with health-focused brands, including:

- Vaccine developers and providers
- Medical diagnostic and therapeutic services
- Health-focused institutions, non-profit organisations, foundations, and NGOs
- Health education companies and publishers
- Travel businesses and services

Who will attend?

Delegates include 120-150 health practitioners from Africa and internationally in both private and public sectors, including:

- General practitioners
- Nurses
- Pharmacists
- Medical students
- Allied health professionals
- Public health professionals in academia, government and the non-profit sector

Travel medicine in the African context

The scientific programme includes updates on infectious diseases, travel health risks in Africa, emerging topics in travel medicine, including new technologies, climate change, wilderness medicine, travel and mental health, travel health insurance, and ethics.

Strengthening travel medicine in Africa is essential to enhancing global health security as cross-border movement for work, trade, tourism and migration influence the spread and emergence of infectious diseases. Clinicians trained in travel medicine are better equipped to anticipate evolving risks, identify, track and respond to global hotspots, protect vulnerable communities, and support local public health systems.

The conference gives delegates unparalleled access to cutting-edge insights from one of the world's most dynamic regions for emerging health trends, infectious diseases, and global mobility. This is a unique opportunity for delegates to learn directly from leading regional and international experts, gain practical skills tailored to real-world challenges, and connect with professionals shaping the future of travel health and disease prevention across the continent.
